Band parents and students,

Thanks to all parents and students who served a shift or more this past weekend at the Greater Atlanta Marching Festival. Your dedication to your child and your service to the band are definitely being rewarded. I am extremely thankful that we have such hard working parents that want the best for their child and support the band.

I want to especially thank our Festival Co-chairs – Kaye Bradford, Mary Hogan, and Virginia Richardson. Without their efforts and organization, this event would not have been successful. I also want to thank all of our subcommittee chairs for their equally hard work in getting their areas organized and full of volunteers. Special thanks, too, to Charlotte Smith and Joyce Wade for calling so many parents this past week to fill our empty volunteer spots.

Parents – we have an awesome organization. You have done a fantastic job in pulling together yet another successful marching festival. For the parents with Freshmen, Sophomores, and Juniors – it is now time to step into the roles that will become void when our Senior parents leave at the end of this year. Please consider being a chairperson or co-chairperson for next year – it is not too early to start.

Again, thank you for all of your hard work and help this weekend. We could not have done it without you!!!

Sincerely,

Scott T. Stanton
